Guidelines for Using the Contacting Grid (in the gray rows)

You may need to contact the household several times before you reach someone. We have found that weeknights and weekends are generally the most successful times, excluding Friday night. Saturday morning and Sunday night have been found to be particularly successful. The following contacting strategy should be followed until you reach someone at the best address:

- Two calls on a weekday in the morning, but only one of these calls should be made in week one and one in week two.
- Two calls during a weekday afternoon, but only one of these calls should be made in week one and one in week two.
- Six calls on a weekday evening; three calls in week one and three calls in week two.
- Six calls during a weekend; three calls on weekend one and three calls on weekend two.
